AN AU-PAIR

Penelope Gonzales comes from Spain. She's 21 years old and she is a student at the Faculty of Arts in Madrid. Last May she decided to go to Great Britain and work there as an au-pair to learn the language.

Penelope arrived at Heathrow airport a year ago. The Browns, her host family, were waiting for her. They gave her a warm welcome. The Browns are from East Clandon, a small village near Guildford. Mr. Brown is an architect and Mrs. Brown is a doctor in a local hospital. They have got three children Elisabeth, Edward and William. Elizabeth is the oldest and William is the youngest in the family. They are all very good children.

Penelope stayed with the host family for six months. She had to work six days a week. She did the housework and she looked after the children. She got 25 pounds pocket money a week and she also got extra money if the Browns went out in the evening and she had to stay in and baby-sit. In the morning, she got up at 7 am and prepared breakfast. Then she put the dishes in a dishwasher.

At 8.30, she drove the children to school. On her way back she stopped at the grocer's to buy things from her shopping list. She washed and ironed the clothes twice a week but she did the ironing only once a week. This is the only thing that she didn't like doing.

In the afternoon, she first picked up the children. When they arrived home, Penelope made dinner for the family. The Browns said that Penelope was an excellent cook.

Penelope never worked in the evenings. She usually hung out with other au-pairs that she met in the village. When she stayed at home she chatted on the phone with her Spanish friends or wrote letters to her family.
